

William L. Jones, prominent Cedar Civic Leader dies; services held

WILLIAM LUNT JONES

William Lunt Jones, 78, successful southern Utah farmer and livestockman, died at his home of cancer Thursday, April 1.

Funeral services, in his honor were held Saturday, April 3 at the Cedar Second Ward Chapel and burial was in the Cedar City Cemetery.

Jones, a native of Cedar City, spent his life in agriculture and in community service. Active in the LDS Church he served a mission to Australia and at the time of his death was a High Priest in the Cedar City Utah West Stake. He was a member of the Woolgrowers Association and the Farm Bureau Association; he served on the committee to plan the Cedar High School and several committees to further the Southern Utah State College. A veteran he served during World War I.

Speakers at the services were Theron Ashcroft, Grant Seaman and Lowell Bennion with remarks by Bishop Cleo M. Petty, who conducted the services. Family prayer was offered by Milton B. Jones. Invocation was by Doyle Ipson; Benediction by Reuben Jones and the dedication of the grave was by York Jones.

Musical selections consisted of the Second Ward Ladies Chorus singing "Lead Kindly Light," accompanied by Mary Jane Seaman; and a String Quartet consisting of Mary MacDonald, June Larsen, Carol Ann Nyman and Madelon Payne, accompanied by Evelyn Jones.

Prelude and postlude music was by Janet Knell.

Jones was born Sept. 14, 1897 in Cedar City to Lehi W. and Henrietta Lunt Jones. He married Claire Bennion Aug. 14, 1924 in the Salt Lake LDS Temple.

Survivors include his wife, Cedar City; three sons and a daughter: Milton B., Ukiah, Calif; Mrs. Arnold (Janet) Gilbert, Brigham City; William Craig and Dr. Spencer B., both of Cedar City. Also surviving are 18 grandchildren, and two brothers, Henry L. and Lehi M., both of Cedar City.